

CONSENT TO ELECTRONIC DELIVERY

Confirmation of Consent to Electronic Delivery

You consent to the electronic delivery of certain account documents such as Trade Confirmations, Account Statements, Prospectuses, and Proxy/Shareholder communications and you agree to all the provisions regarding electronic delivery stated in Scottrade's Brokerage Account Agreement. You should be aware by consenting to electronic delivery you are agreeing to suppress the mailing of paper documents. We will provide you with online notification or send you an email regarding the availability of the documents on our Web site. If we are unable to notify you electronically, you understand we may, in our sole and absolute discretion, discontinue electronic delivery and send you account documents in paper form.

Once you consent, and upon our receipt of this signed document, electronic delivery will be established on your account. Electronic delivery will remain in effect unless revoked by Scottrade or by you. You may revoke your consent to electronic delivery at any time by logging into our Web site and changing your preferences or by notifying us in writing. Your revocation is only effective after we receive and process it. If you revoke your consent to some or all documents for which we offer electronic delivery, you will receive future documents in paper form sent to the address indicated for your account. If we send you paper documents, we will charge a fee at our then current fee schedule for delivery of paper documents.

There is no charge from us for electronic delivery, but online access and usage charges by your Internet service or access provider may apply. Other than access to a Web site via Internet, you understand that there are no additional hardware or software requirements needed to access this information. The information will be made available in html or PDF format and may be printed and/ or saved. You acknowledge that you can access documents in html or PDF format and print/download this information.
